

VOCI D'OGGI, where the Italian music of the '900 meets the warm sounds of Brazil

The fifth volume of DUETS, a collection of CD+DVD dedicated to the meeting between contemporary music and jazz, talks about “voice” with two leading performers: Barbara Casini and Stelia Doz.

Barbara Casini, has devoted her life to the music, especially to the singing. Falls in love with Brazil, her second music homeland, she's considered the most important performer of brasilian music in Italy. In this album she duets with one of the most appreciated and renowned guitarist, Riccardo Bianchi and Beppe Fornaroli, with whom she collaborated for several years.

They proposed unpublished tracks, able to charm the audience with the typical passionate and enveloping notes of Brazilian music.

At the end will be the beautiful voice of the soprano, Stelia Doz, accompanied by the pianist and musicologist, Guido Salvetti, to close this album, with a touching interpretation of “In Mittagstraum”, one of three lieder on George, written by the Italian composer Alessandro Solbiati, on lyrical by Stefan George.
